

Low fidelity

Change Log

For the cart page, my design approach was to show a review of the selected items. I chose not to have a back button to make it difficult for the user to go back and encourage them to complete the purchase.

I decided to have my recommendations slider in the cart page to encourage impulse purchases. Just before a customer checks out, they might see a specific bun which they may have missed and might want to get it. This mimics the impulse buy section next to the cashiers in convenience stores.